Synergy Introduces Web Based Compliance Service

Synergy Enhances 1099 Compliance Service for Customers using Independent Contractors

Denver, CO, September 5, 2003 – Synergy Services Corp., a leading provider of contingent workforce solutions, today enhanced its compliance service by implementing a web based version of its compliance service for companies with independent contractors. Synergy Compliance Services help companies better understand whether their 1099 contractors might be misclassified under the rules set forth by the IRS.

Synergy Compliance Services includes a number of assessments for evaluating the status of independent contractors and outlining the risks of misclassification. Synergy compiles this information in to a comprehensive compliance report that outlines a company's financial exposure including potential penalties and recommendations for achieving compliance.

“Our new web based compliance service will give our customers a more comprehensive look at the risks of 1099 misclassification”, said Tim Miller, Founder and President of Synergy Services Corp. “In addition our scoring engine will actually quantify those risks so our customers can more accurately evaluate those risks”

Synergy's Compliance Service has been reviewed by compliance experts in order to ensure accuracy and provide a comprehensive view of contractor compliance. The new web based version of this service combines the IRS 20 Questions test, with controls testing, business compliance and state compliance testing to provide a more comprehensive look at the potential risks of misclassification.
